BALTIMORE, MD.

"OUR LADY OF EVERGREEN"

REV. MATTHEW G. SULLIVAN, S.J.
"Priest, teacher, comrade . . ."

DEDICATION

"priest, teacher, comrade" . . . this phrase attempts but utterly fails, to convey all the respect, esteem and affection, that we feel for Father Sullivan.

As a priest and confessor, he fulfilled Cardinal Newman's ideal of a priestly teacher, directing us in the right as he made us see the right, by word and example.

As teacher, he unravelled the myraid lines of Cicero and Horace, spun a golden aura about the literature of all the ages and instilled deep within us an understanding and appreciation of the truths of Psychology.

As comrade . . . it is useless to try. Suffice it to say that the memory of his encouraging voice, his engaging smile, his active, yes, enthusiastic participation in all activities, will forever abide in the hearts of this, his class . . . Father Sullivan, you did much to make Loyola College the wonderful experience that it was, and . . . Thank you.

Reverend Edward B. Bann, S. J.
President

To the 1944 Graduates of Loyola

You are facing a troubled world. The most critical issues in history challenge the ingenuity, courage and faith of the greatest leadership. Your education in Ignatian principles is calculated to fit you for this role. Living for one's self and one's own interest has no place in the philosophy of life in which your characters have been molded. The "Greater Glory of God" is the essence of that philosophy. As fathers of a family, as professional men, as members of a church, as citizens of your country, the one aspiration and the goal of all your activities should be the achievement of the ideal in all these spheres of your life. Your work here at Loyola and your contribution to her spirit justifies our expectations that you will measure up to these high standards.

FACULTY

To the Graduates:

Following in the footsteps of three wartime graduating classes, you leave college for a world in the midst of war. Many of you, as members of the Armed Forces, may soon be face to face with danger and hardship; yet, we trust that, guided by the fundamental principles of your Faith and of the Natural Law, you will remain ever steadfast, honorable, and loyal to God and country.

Joseph A. d'Invilliers, S.J.
Dean

THE SENIOR CLASS

"March on, men; march on, men; march onward to the fray" . . . these words from the spirited athletic song of Loyola College strike the keynote of the sentiment with which Loyola College regards her sons in these troubled times. And so it is, with this traditional admonition ringing in their minds and memories, that the Class of January 1944, graduates.

The storm clouds of distrust and aggression had just begun to darken the peaceful international sky two and a half years ago when our class first assembled. It was a large class then, confident in its numbers, active in its united enthusiasm. These original one hundred and thirty-five, faced with the demands of a nation at war, slowly but inevitably dwindled to a mere thirty seven. But, in spite of our lack of numbers, our class was not found wanting in energy or enthusiasm, in loyalty or confidence, in endeavor or achievement. We presented a united front to the other classes of the College and proved that the ability of a class to lead is commensurate only with the quality of its members and certainly does not depend on numbers.

One of the principle reasons for the outstanding successes of the Senior Class is energetic, likable Tony Leary, four time President of the Class, once by a unanimous vote. Another is the very evident harmony which exists among the various sections: such harmony, though often unavoidably missing from College life, undoubtedly arose from the decrease in numbers. But by far the most important reason lies in the fact that Loyola trains its sons to succeed. In them are inculcated sound moral principles and a proportionate sense of values, the exercise of which is a firm guarantee of success.

With the honest pride and justifiable satisfaction of men who, in times that try mens' souls, have done their duty well, we take leave of the school that we love, hopeful that we may have added, in slight measure, to the mass of glorious tradition that is Loyola. But the sorrow that we feel at leaving Loyola is tempered by the sweetness of the realization that we have merited to call her "Alma Mater" and the remembrance of her as a loved and loving mother shall remain forever. This sentiment which we are trying to convey, a sentiment heartfelt by every Senior, is very beautifully and aptly expressed in the lyric of our "Alma Mater" song:

"Years may come in between, seas may us part; still will loyal sons keep Evergreen, Loyola in their hearts."

In Memoriam

LIEUT. MARK W. JENKINS, II

His friends hailed him as "Nip," and those friends were many indeed, for Mark was one whom everyone liked, not after a character analysis, or anything so methodical, but immediately, spontaneously.

Quite a few of the Class of '44 of Loyola College attended Loyola High School with Mark and there formed an attachment for him, because of his effervescent, sparkling humor and gentlemanly conduct. This affection endured, even grew, throughout our first year of college, warmed by a wide smile under a Green and Grey beanie.

After his first year at Loyola College, however, Mark joined the Naval Air Corps, passing through Pensacola Air Base, and on to Corpus Christi, Texas, where he received his wings but a short time ago, graduating high in his class. This proficiency privileged him to transfer to the Marine Air Corps and he was transferred to Jacksonville, Florida, for further training. But somehow, it was not God's will that Mark would live to fight for those concepts which he held most dear.

And so, the first member of our class is gone; Yet not gone, because his friends, and lovers of gallantry the world over, will forever cherish his memory in their hearts.

THE TWENTY-THIRD PSALM

The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His Name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me, Thy rod and Thy staff, they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Ps. xxiii-iv

It was God's will that the Class of January, 1944 should not remain intact to fulfill the richness of its promise, a promise that was indeed bright in the scholastic, the extra-curricular, and the athletic aspects of College life. Every member showed such willingness and talent that, had the war not prevented their exercise, would have established this class as a memorable one in Loyola annals.

However, diamonds shone forth, men with exceptional talents and capabilities which were bound to out. There was "Ham" Molz, former editor of the Greyhound, and Bill (Shakespeare) Bavis, both wonderful debators and actors and consistent honor students, who now grace the campus of Mt. St. Mary's in the Navy V-12 program. Jim Ball, one of the most promising track prospects to be at Loyola in years; Sam Brocato, Middle Atlantic States intercollegiate wrestling champion; Leon Greenbaum, aquatic ace; and "Babe" Schwallenberg, star first-baseman of Loyola's nine, now wear the blue of the Navy Air Corps. There are many others: Jack Fetting, former Loyola pitcher; Jim Mann, Lacrosse, football and basketball stalwart; Luke Karst, fast man on the cinder path; and many more who could and should be mentioned here; but, because of their numbers and the size of this testimonial, we must confine ourselves to the fervent wish that these, and all our former classmates, may enjoy "God-speed" on the road to victory.

'44 JANUARY ON ACTIVE DUTY

As they served Loyola well, so also they serve their country well
in the Army of the United States:

Anderson, Clair Sherrill
Bloom, Paul William
Boucher, George Abbot
Bracken, Gerald Francis
Casey, Arthur Dorrance
Croghan, John Jerome
Deise, Maurice Vernon
Elias, Jacob Thomas
Flannery, James Kenneth
Fulcher, George Creasy, Jr.
Geckle, Andrew Bernard
Guidera, Thomas Joseph
Hendricks, Theodore William
Kessler, Lawrence Joseph
Kiefer, John Gilford
Maconachy, Owings
Moller, Lawrence Joseph
Murphy, George Joseph
Noon, Edward Francis
Robinson, Clifford Leroy
Rostkowski, Francis Walter
Victor, William Hugo
Ward, Paul Charles
Woytowitz, Peter Joseph

Other proudly "sustinent alas" of the Army Air Corps:

Auer, William Wells
Baldwin, William Lester
Fleury, Alexander Augustine
Foster, Thomas Galvin
Knell, Joseph Anthony, Jr.
Mattingly, Howard Thomas
McDonald, Francis Joseph
O'Connor, Joseph Francis
Riley, Thomas Edward
Thompson, John Albert

The following are holding Loyola's standards high in the blue of the United States Navy:

Bavis, William Stephen
Clarken, James Carroll
Eickhoff, Andrew
Footner, Geoffrey March
Gittings, John Sterrett
Hamill, Jere Owens
Huppmann, Paul Henry
Johnson, Julius Leonard
Kaiser, Thomas Earl
Kennedy, John Francis, Jr.
Kernan, Jerome Hayes
Klosteridis, Constantine
McCall, Thomas
Molz, Harold Anthony
Moser, Robert Harlan
Paska, Roman Andrew
Pula, Thaddeus Joseph
Sehlstedt, Albert Ignatius

These sons of Loyola augment the strength of our Navy Air Corps:

Ball, James Horner
Brocato, Samuel Joseph
Connor, Robert McIntyre
Fahrney, Robert Herman
Fay, Edward Joseph, Jr.
Greenbaum, Leon J.
Hafer, J. Richard
Jenkins, Mark Wilcox, R.I.P.
Krehnbrink, Thomas Edward
Schwalenberg, Robert Michael

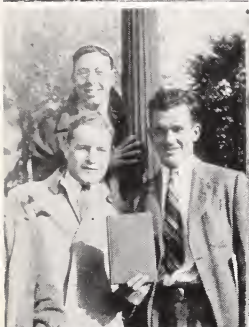

And last in our list of Loyola men in the Armed Forces of the United States, but far, far from least, are these fighting members of the Marine Corps:

Coughlin, Patrick Joseph
Dawson, William Albert
Fetting, John Howard
Karst, Martin Luther
Mann, James Francis
Mannion, Thomas Francis

Miller, Francis Harwood
Roessler, Donald William
Schmitt, Lawrence John
Smith, William James
Strausbaugh, William Aloysius, Jr.
Strickroth, Charles H.
Wilhelm, Robert Paul

But there is yet another war to be fought; not a physical war, one of bullets, bombs and blood; rather, a war against the forces of evil and corruption that are pervading world society and disintegrating world order. And just as eagerly as Loyola men volunteered to help vanquish those products of false philosophy, religion and economism, who attacked our country, did they also respond to the Call to the Divine Service of God, in order to surpress the vice the moral perversion, the ignorance, that vainly try to best God's Holy Law. We feel a signal honor to have been associated with these men, who are now studying in preparation for Christ's priestly cross:

Carmody, Francis X.
Graham, Edgar Baker, Jr.
Mackey, Maurice F.
Moran, John Joseph
Nugent, Robert C.
